

Amiga Specialty Secures New Lloyd's Capacity for Management Liability

London, 22nd December 2025

Amiga Specialty has secured new Lloyd's capacity to support its Management Liability proposition for SME and mid-market businesses across the UK, Europe and select rest-of-world territories.

The new facility strengthens Amiga Specialty's capability to deliver underwriting-led solutions across Directors' & Officers' and broader Management Liability risks, providing brokers with responsive, commercially minded capacity backed by Lloyd's.

The business is led by James Rasmussen, who brings extensive experience in building and underwriting Management Liability portfolios across a wide range of sectors and risk profiles. The team offers pragmatic underwriting, swift decision-making and a broker-first approach, supported by clear appetite, consistent execution and fast turnaround times.

The facility is focused on the UK and Europe as core territories, whilst retaining flexibility to support international operations and cross-border exposures where appropriate.

James Rasmussen, Managing Director - Management Liability at Amiga Specialty, commented:

"This Lloyd's-backed facility reinforces our underwriting-led approach, combining disciplined judgement with speed, clarity and a genuine understanding of risk. It brings additional, meaningful capacity to the London market."

Adam Kembroke, Group Managing Director and Founder, Amiga Specialty, added:

"Securing Lloyd's capacity is an important step in scaling Amiga Specialty. The Management Liability proposition benefits significantly from Lloyd's reputation and licensing infrastructure, reinforcing our commitment to underwriting-led growth, long-term broker partnerships and building specialist teams around people we trust."

Amiga Specialty continues to expand its specialty lines portfolio, combining experienced underwriting teams with technology-enabled workflows to deliver a high-quality, responsive experience for brokers.
